

Help your heavy-equipment clients save thousands with NER

NER's off-road equipment insurance incentive program can give your clients deductible waivers of up to $10,000 or premium credits

Every year, thieves steal heavy equipment worth millions of dollars. Theft of construction equipment is costly not only to equipment owners but also to their insurers.

Most heavy-equipment insurers address the issue of theft by supporting the National Equipment Register (NER®), an ISO company that manages a national database of equipment ownership and theft reports. NER offers its extensive data to law enforcement through a 24-hour hotline manned by equipment identification specialists.

How it works

Heavy-equipment fleet owners register their machines with NER's HELPtech Heavy Equipment Loss Prevention Technology® database. Law enforcement in every state uses HELPtech® to identify and recover stolen construction equipment — sometimes even before owners discover the theft.

Many major insurance companies offer deductible waivers of up to $10,000 or premium credits when fleet owners register their equipment with NER's HELPtech.
